TYLER PLACE.

This property adjoins Tower Grove Park on the north, and lies between Grand Avenue on the east and Shaw's Botanical Garden on the west. That it is the highest point in the neighborhood of the city is fully attested by the fact of its selection by the public authorities as the site of the Compton Hill Reservoir, which is built immediately opposite the northeast corner of Tyler Place, on the eastern side of Grand Avenue. Owing to its altitude the atmosphere is always dry, fresh and invigorating, and as long as there is water in the reservoir there will never be a scarcity of that element on Compton Hill. The locality is by far the most attractive in the city; in fact, the property is surrounded on all sides by objects of public interest and public patronage.

TOWER GROVE PARK

Contains 277 acres, and is the most highly improved and beautifully ornamented park in the West. It is the finest driving park in the city, containing something over 10 miles of red gravel drives, besides its formal embellishments and artificial improvements. This beautiful place was donated to the city by Mr. Henry Shaw, who stipulated in his deed of gift that it should always be devoted to park purposes; and further, that the city should expend a certain sum annually upon the preservation and improvement of the grounds. From this it will be seen that those who purchase

HOMES IN TYLER PLACE

Will never be deprived of the benefits and advantages arising from the fact that the improvements to the south are of the highest order, and permanently and unchangeably fixed. Immediately on the west of and adjoining TYLER PLACE lies Shaw's Botanical Garden, an institution of international renown. Here specimens of the rarest plants, trees, shrubs and flowers in the botanical category may be seen in full vigor of life and color, and of healthy growth, no matter what climate or country may be longed for. Hundreds have traveled great distances for the purpose of visiting this modern Neighborhood and most desirable residence property in the city. It has been subdivided into lots of popular size, and the ground has been improved by the establishment of streets, grades, etc., by private contract. Its present railroad facilities are equal to those of any in the city, but an elevated road and cable line are now in contemplation, which will furnish rapid and comfortable transportation to its residents.

The terms upon which this property will be sold are liberal in the extreme, and are so arranged that those in moderate circumstances will stand upon a footing with and obtain the same facilities and privileges as those of more opulent means.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.

ONDON, May 26.—Mr. Vanderbilt has left town for a few days. He has gone away, evidently to escape the importunate attentions of the society people who have been hunting for him in every London nook and corner with subscription books. It is now said that Mr. Vanderbilt proposes to give several receptions at Lady Herbert de La's house, which he has taken for three months, in return for many social attentions paid to himself and wife. At the end of the London season he will return to Scotland for moor shooting upon Lord Lovat's place, which he holds under five years' lease.

MR. BLAINE STILL KEEPS AWAY from London. As his arrival here has been postponed until the first of the week, there are many Americans waiting to see him, hoping he will be persuaded to accept the nomination. By this time next week it will in all probability be clearly shown to the satisfaction of every one that he rigidly adheres to his Florence decision.

THE BLAINE FAMILY'S PRESENTATION.

I have heard from an American lady, who is a member of the court circle in Rome, of the particulars of the presentation of Mrs. Blaine and her daughter, Miss Blaine, to the Queen of Italy. The Queen, wishing to pay honor to the family, sent word that she would receive them in a private audience thus avoiding the formal dress and rigid etiquette of state ceremony. The dresses worn by the ladies in calling were therefore the same as would have been worn in a private audience. Mrs. Blaine had been given all the needful points of court etiquette. She was to wear a black dress and to speak in a low and no case to volunteer any leading remarks. The members of the party were to be formally presented in turn when the Queen indicated her willingness to receive them. Mr. Blaine accompanied his family, but as the special audience was in Mrs. Blaine's honor she came first.

THE QUEEN RECEIVED THEM

In her private audience chamber. She was seated upon a sofa and rose as the party entered. The Queen immediately asked Mrs. Blaine to take a seat by her side. Mrs. Blaine presented each member of her party as if she were paying a regular call and this act at once relieved the situation of all formality. The Queen appeared to be especially pleased with the informal character of the interview, and elicited very freely, asking many questions. She speaks English with great fluency. She complimented Miss Dodge upon her writings, with which she professed familiarity, and was as cordial as one the King in his special audience with Mr. Blaine.

AN INTIMATE FRIEND OF MR. BLAINE in speaking of his relations to the present campaign said to-day he must remain out of the canvass. If he had not withdrawn in the first place he might have felt that he had not been nominated without much. If any contest, but he had been through the contests for the nomination, and each time there had been certain disappointments among the Republican leaders. Mr. Blaine felt that he had stood in their way long enough, and that it was but fair for him now to stand aside and give others a chance. He believes the Republicans have a splendid chance to win this year if they are thoroughly harmonized.

HIS ORIGINAL WITHDRAWAL

was in the interest of such harmony, and having once withdrawn he will feel in duty and in honor bound to stand by that decision. His friends, who have become candidates since his withdrawal, may feel that he had not acted in good faith if he should reappear in the canvass. If he were to be a candidate now before the country in face of his withdrawal he would not be strong. This Mr. Blaine fully understands, and you may rest assured he will not be a candidate who would not be approved by the most honorable and scrupulous of gentlemen.

DR. STANLEY'S PRACTICE.

I have heard from a good source that Dr. Thomas P. Evans, the famous American millionaire dentist of Paris, has had under consideration the project to establish a great industrial school for boys in some part of the United States. Such a plan has been laid before him. The doctor has a great fortune, estimated at $20,000,000 at least, and as he has a direct interest in it, it is reasonably certain that the doctor will some day give some part of his fortune to an institution that will most honorably perpetuate his name in his own country. He has recently received a diamond-mounted gold medal from the Emperor of Germany and a jubilee medal from Queen Victoria.

BRENTANO &amp; CO.'S NEW SHOP.

Brentano & Co. have been so successful in their venture in Paris, that they now propose to open a shop in Regent street. It is an ambition of this firm to have a chain of bookstores in all of the great capitals of the world.

A DULL DREARY.

The Derby this year promises to be a very dull event. There is very little interest taken in it, owing to the alleged management of the London track manager.

A NEW AUSTRIAN RAILWAY.

After years of struggling against Austrian prejudice and incompetency, the Austrian authorities have finally succeeded in opening a direct railroad communication with the Adriatic sea, so that German tourists can be reached in forty-eight hours' journey from Vienna. This has been a long and arduous project to tunnel the channel so as to bring England in closer touch with the far East.

THE ANNUAL COACHING PARADE

In Hyde Park brought out an unusual crowd. The weather was too cold for a display of equestrianism. There were no new features in the parade.

AN AMERICAN SINGER'S SUCCESS.

Mrs. Kate Sullivan, the American prima donna, has scored the operatic success of the week. She was called upon Monday evening without rehearsal, and upon two nights' notice to sing in Don Giovanni, awakened the enthusiasm of the audience and has been favorably considered by all the critics.

THE LADY WHISTLER'S VISIT.

Mrs. Alice Shaw, the American whistler, is just now the great attraction at high society entertainments. Recently she whistled for the Prince of Wales and was personally complimented by him.

PARISIAN GOSSIP.

A Fine American Exhibit Promised—Fashions and Society Events.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.

ARIS, May 26.—It is the very general opinion among the parties connected with the exhibition Committee that a reception at which the leading lights of the American world are to be the American Commissioners.

General. I hear from prominent officials that the American exhibits are to be exceptionally numerous and fine. The leading chocolate manufacturer of New York is reported to be about to do wonders and if reports are true will have one of the finest shows of any. On the other hand, the American artists are busy, so that art may vie with commerce. In their section work has already begun with this purpose in view in the ateliers. Storey, Weeks, Bridgman, Henderson, Princess Sey-Montebello, amongst others, have important works on the easels.

PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES

has been having a busy time of it. On Thursday he visited the dog show, which has little attraction this year, and in the evening was entertained by Gen. Menabrea at dinner and at a reception at which the leading lights of the American world were present. His entertainment is looked on in Paris as a sign that the end of the difficulties between France and Italy is approaching, and this consolation is to be the consolation of the American world.

THE BLAINE FAMILY'S PRESENTATION.

I have heard from an American lady, who is a member of the court circle in Rome, of the particulars of the presentation of Mrs. Blaine and her daughter, Miss Blaine, to the Queen of Italy. The Queen, wishing to pay honor to the family, sent word that she would receive them in a private audience thus avoiding the formal dress and rigid etiquette of state ceremony. She complimented Miss Dodge upon her writings, with which she professed familiarity, and was as cordial as one the King in his special audience with Mr. Blaine.

A MARVELOUS DRESS

has just been sent out from the principal couturier here for the Princess of Wales. This is a court dress. The top is of pearl-gray silk, over which is a skirt of deep red satin with pattern of aquatic plants. The corse, which is of the same material and pattern as the skirt and train, is ornamented with old-silver embroidery, which was presented to the Princess on her silver wedding.

LUXURY IS BECOMING RAMPANT

in the Third Republic. This year's entertainments are costlier than ever they were under the disolute Empire. The chief excuse for the extravagance is afforded by the cotton. Formerly the gifts distributed in connection with this dance were trifles of no value and I remember the time when Mrs. Mackay's distribution of gold medals and fanholders was considered very generous. Now the gifts are costly presents, and a big cotton usually stands for $4,000.

In the bill of costs are hand-painted fans, gold purses, rings, jeweled cigar cases and holders are amongst the expensive gifts distributed.

THE JARDIN DE PARIS.

the fashionable pleasure resort in the Champs Elysees, opened to-night.

Mr. Blaine is a daily visitor to the now almost deserted American Excelsior for the purpose of looking over the files of the daily papers.

FRENCH AND GERMAN RETALIATION.

Severe Passport Orders—Trouble Anticipated—Theatrical Cuts in London.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.

ONDON, May 26.—If there is any serious trouble on the Franco-German frontier, it will be owing to the recent severe orders issued regarding the admission of foreigners across the line.

THE MAINTENANCE

of such an order will injure seriously the business of the French railroads. All English travelers now going to Germany select the route through Belgium. A dispatch says there will be no modification of the order, which is an act of retaliation for alleged annoyances caused by the French border regulations. It is a duplicate of the Russian regulations on the eastern border line. It is certain that the French will seek to further retaliate a counter act on the German order, particularly as it is now proposed at Berlin to issue a further order for the expulsion from the territory of Alsace-Lorraine all suspected persons of French nationality.

DR. NATHAN R. GORTER

of Baltimore, who accompanied Robert Garrett around the world as his physician, representative of the Port-Dispatch, was called upon him. Dr. Gorter said he had left Mr. Garrett at Berlin, that he was very well and had greatly enjoyed his tour around the world. The Garrett party arrived yesterday at Munich, and was expected to Paris and London. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Garrett do not intend returning to America until fall. They will reach Paris the last of May.

A NEW PLAY FOR PALMER.

Mr. Buchanan has been commissioned by Charles Overton, acting for A. M. Palmer, to write a new four-act drama. Mr. Palmer contemplates bringing over his entire company next year to perform at Mr. Buchanan's new place, in all probability at Haymarket Theater.

"THE SCARLET LEAF." DRAMATIZED.

Miss Calhoun has taken a royalty on the theater for a term commencing early next month with the production of "The Scarlet Leaf," a romantic four-act play by the Hon. Stephen Coleridge and Norman Forbes, who have of course gone for their inspiration to the novel by Nathaniel Hawthorne. Miss Calhoun will undertake the important part of Hester Prynne, and will be supported in the prominent characters by Mr. J. Forbes Robertson and Mr. Norman Forbes.

A PROBABLE COMPROMISE.

What the Southampton Victory Means—The Limerick Meeting—Meeting Notes.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, May 26.—The Liberals are elated with the results of the Southampton race. Mr. Chamberlain at Lyndhurst with Sir William Harcourt, the simultaneous appearance of the visit of John Morley to Ireland are indications that the Irish controversy has assumed a new phase. Many believe that the stage of compromise, and in the hands of a reunited Liberal party a compromise would not be likely to be unfavorable to the later aspirations of the Irish people.

LONDON GOSSIP.

Emperor Frederick's Condition—The Panama Lottery Loan.

Special Cablegram to the Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, May 26.—The presence of the Emperor Frederick in the Chamber of Deputies is a matter of great interest. There is little definite news on the subject except what leaks from private dispatches. There was some uneasiness to-day over a slight inflammation in the Emperor's throat, but the Emperor went into the park as usual in the morning, but remained only a short time, owing to the inclemency of the weather. As the day advanced the inflammation of the throat subsided and during the evening there was no recurrence of the symptoms.

THE PANAMA LOTTERY.

In the hall of politics at Paris the Panama Canal Lottery Loan bill assumes the first importance. The friends of the company were busy all the day in the Chamber of Deputies, and the measure progressed through the Senate. Mr. Golard's speech against the bill, led M. De Lesseps to deliver a public lecture on Thursday to counteract the effect. It is believed that the bill would have been defeated in the Chamber after the Emperor's exposure had not political schemes entered into the question. The Right, after a caucus, decided to support the bill. We scheme on the ground that it would embarrass the Government and help to bring about a change of ministry. The Left, after various stages in the Senate smoothly, most of whose members are friends and associates of M. De Lesseps. The committee to which the bill was referred, did not enter into the merits of the question, but sought to find out whether the lack of system was feasible, or the adoption in good faith. The only point lodged into was the effect on financial affairs in France if the lottery was accorded, and what would result from its refusal. All the publicity of the bill has been in the Chamber of Deputies, and the bill has been referred to the wish of the company, and it is believed that the light that has been thrown upon its position, prospects and methods will render it difficult to do it in London.

GEN. SHERIDAN'S ILLNESS

A RECURRENCE OF HEART FAILURE MAKES HIS CONDITION CRITICAL.

The Patient at Midnight—All the Doctors Remain at the House Through the Night—The Manner in Which the Sick Man Passed the Day—Alarming Symptoms in the Afternoon—Freshening Naps in Which the General Gave Strength.

By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 26.—Through the early part of the day Gen. Sheridan, whose alarming illness no one now attempts to conceal, fairly held his own. Late this afternoon, however, he experienced a recurrence of the heart failure which is the gravest symptom in the case.

At 10 o'clock to-night, when the physicians issued the last bulletin to be given out until to-morrow morning, the sick man's attendants were anxiously watching him, hoping for the best, but fearing the worst.

All night long a little silver lamp burned dimly in the sick room. A Sister of Charity from the Providence Hospital, and the trained nurse who arrived from New York yesterday morning watched with the patient by turns through the night. A low couch was placed in the sick chamber, and on it one of the faithful watchers occasionally snatched a little sleep. In an adjoining room, that he might come at a moment's notice, one of the physicians remained in attendance all night.

During the early hours the General sat in a half-reclining position in the big invalid chair he has occupied almost constantly since he was first taken ill. He finds it far more comfortable than a bed. He breathes much more freely and the doctors are satisfied that the position conduces to the normal action of the heart, which, in its enfeebled condition, gives them great concern. The General sleeps for an hour or Gen. Phil Sheridan, so in the chair, lying on his right side, and then resting himself with the aid of one of his attendants, will turn upon his back and quickly drop off to sleep again. His ability to take

has been regarded by the physicians as a point greatly in his favor, as he uniformly awakes refreshed and strengthened and gains each time all that he has lost from the debilitating effects of the imperfect circulation of the blood, due to the weak condition of the heart. Several times during the night the physician in attendance noiselessly entered the sick chamber, and approaching the patient listened intently to catch the somewhat labored breathing. Once or twice the General slowly opened his eyes as the doctor stood with his ear almost against the sick man's heart. On noting his wakefulness several drops of digitalis were administered for the purpose of reducing the heart pulsations. Along toward morning the General became very restless and noisy, which the physicians as a rule consider a bad sign, but which is hardly audible in his enfeebled condition. He asked to be taken to his room, but he might rest his somewhat cramped limbs by the change. The easy chair was accordingly moved near the bed and the doctor and two nurses lifted the patient from it and laid him carefully in the bed. He was then placed with his head and shoulders in order that his lungs and heart should have free and normal action. Here Gen. Sheridan remained for some time, and as dawn began to show on the eastern horizon he called his attention to him again with a sign and was carried back to his chair. He slept soundly until sometime toward noon, when he awoke his nurse bathed his face and hands in warm water and gave him a cup of port wine, which he drank with great apparent relish. At 8 o'clock, Dr. Farrow, O'Reilly and Matthews entered the sick chamber and carefully examined the patient, particular attention being paid to the action of the heart, which was found to be beating with clear and regular pulsation.

After twenty minutes spent in chatting with the sick man, the doctors withdrew and prepared the following bulletin, which was issued from the army headquarters at the War Department.

May 26, 1st a. m.—Communication by Drs. Farrow, Matthews and O'Reilly. Patient expressed himself as having passed a peaceful night; says he has no pain whatever and feels fairly well. No material change in symptoms has occurred since report of last night. During the forenoon the General gained visibly in strength and spirits, talking freely in a much stronger voice than those of the latter's protest, and asking occasionally for his mail. At about noon he took considerable nourishment and was apparently bright and strong. Dr. O'Reilly gave it as his opinion that the General is slowly recovering from his illness, and that this was carefully called over by Col. Sheridan, and the General's own opinion was that he was slowly recovering. During the day several doses of digitalis were administered. This remedy has been given since the General's illness first taken ill, but is now discontinued with the greatest care. The patient has been slightly increased from time to time until Thursday morning, when the doctors were admonished to keep in reserve the effect of a large dose in case of an emergency. Then it was that the General began leaving the ground he had gained, and it was said that the matter last night was a morning, alarming both physicians and family and calling forth the first official bulletin upon the condition of the sick man, was occasioned by the failure of the seduced doses of digitalis to control the action of the heart.

With this day has been a very quiet one at the sick man's residence. One of the physicians has remained at the house constantly, sitting either in the sick-room or in the library below. Col. Sheridan has passed nearly the whole day in doors, going out but once for a short walk up and down the Lafayette avenue, Lieut. Col. Hunt and Major Kellie, Gen. Sheridan's personal aides, were with him during much of the day, and one or two young army officers were on duty at the house to be in readiness should any emergency arise. A double force of servants has been secured. The tall colored butler, who with the face of a sphinx has answered the door bell since the General was taken ill, replying to all callers that his master was always better, has been obliged to make a little rest and is now being attended by a stalwart young white man.

Answering questions, but with a noticeable lack of carry-over and messages to and from Col. Sheridan. The latter has been in the reception-room of all callers. They are ushered in here, and friends of the family, Col. Sheridan, one of the General's aides-de-camp and receives them. The whole household has the air of a scene of the sick chamber. Many inquiries were sent to the house to-day. The President's son sent a messenger to secure the latest intelligence of the General's condition.

THE GENERAL'S CONDITION and the Ministers of the Cabinet and many prominent officials have been called at the house. All day long a stream of carriages rolled up to the main, called a few moments and then drove on. The rumble of the wheels on the asphalt and the clatter of the horses' hoofs were heard outside the sick chamber. The General's condition is such that the block of cars is not to be broken up. The General's condition is such that the block of cars is not to be broken up.

"JACK," "DICK" AND "NIG"

REMARKABLE DOGS CONNECTED WITH THE FIRE DEPARTMENT.

A Scotch Terrier That Ran With the Machine—"Jack" Would Enter Burning Buildings and Help to Fight Fire—The Dog That Saved a Child—Assistant Chief Barry's Dog.

EXAMPLES of the wonderful sagacity of dogs are often printed in newspapers, and in some instances what is related of them is so marvelous that the truth of the stories is doubted, but there are dogs belonging to the Fire Department in this city which have displayed a sagacity which is equal almost to human intelligence.

The Fire Department dogs are nearly all fond of dogs, and one of them is kept in the city.

They are made great pets of, but it is a singular fact that no matter what species they belong to, all the putting and fondling they receive never causes them to lose their activity and game sense. Like the horses, at the first sound of the gong they are all excitement and when the engine dashes out they follow it to the fire.

One of the most remarkable dogs ever attached to the Fire Department was a Scotch terrier that belonged to the "Stra." His first pup in an appearance at No. 4 Engine-house about ten years ago and was adopted by the firemen. He had not been with them long when his exploits became so well known, that his previous history was ascertained. He was raised by a watchman on Washington avenue, but deserted his master at an early age. He stayed in the Salvage Corps house and remained about there for some time, but having no one to go over to him, he was eventually taken to the city.

BROOKINGS, Dak., May 18.—A somewhat romantic marriage occurred here to-day. A triner named Thomas, who has been living one on his farm for years, commenced corresponding with a lady in Indiana, of whom he thought the meridian of some sentimental journal. Yesterday the lady came and was met of the depot by two young men. They were married and headed Westward for a wedding tour.

CHICAGO, May 25.—The wheat market closed weak and tired and only about 10¢ above the lowest point touched after the deluge, the deluge of wheat which came out on the heels of the now somewhat celebrated reaction from 91¢. The rally from 85¢ was as precipitous as the collapse and carried July wheat to 88½¢ and December back to 90¢. The close this afternoon was 89½¢ for July and December respectively.

and so, so, so, their reports and all information that they could get from the country made the trade slow to take any stock in the wheat. But the latter part of the season a fresh rush of damage news that came direct from St. Louis from the country—from Indiana and Illinois—made the market more active. "Whennesses on the South and from Missouri and Kansas on the West. The wheat was 'thin and spindly,' 'weeds,' 'clutch bugs,' 'Hessian fly,' and heaven knows what. All sorts of things were said, and it was necessary to be at work grinding out these bad reports. Their commission houses bought a lot of wheat from the West, from the Grand, Clergy & Co., Booth & Sons, Billingsley & Co., and others. The wheat was not so good as big country clientele taking in good times. Naturally, these houses are built on the grain business, and they are not so good as Mr. Albers & Co. are dearish. This short crop of wheat will make the elevator business very busy here, and I presume they will begin laying in their stock of wheat for the winter. The elevator alone will the elevators be able to make their regular storage by carrying the wheat, and I think they will. There is a great deal of wheat and a good demand for it right along. It will change to me that the difference in prices between the wheat and the corn is very close, though, that they will widen.
